Crowe Demands Death For Slayers

PROSECUTION FURIOUSLY HAMMERS DEFENSE

Shouts Threat of Gallows In Face of Leopold as Trial Nears End

By GEO. R. HOLMES
For International News Service.

CRIMINAL COURT, CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Tearing into the defense of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard A. Loeb with a fury seldom equalled in any court room, State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe demanded the death penalty for the slayers of young Bobby Franks today in tones that carried for blocks beyond the grey old court where Judge Caverly is weighing their punishment.

Crowe rose to the heights of drama never before approached in this dramatic trial. At one time his brandishing fist was less than two feet from the nose of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and he shouted that he was "a murderer, a pervert, and a kidnaper," and told him he would hang on the gallows.

The defense fired its final gun today in the fight to fix the punishment of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb for the murder of Robert Franks.

An abrupt change in the plans of the defense lawyers today brought the end of the epochal proceeding in sight.

Praise Darrow Plea

Clarence Darrow's masterful plea for mercy, characterized by other lawyers and jurists as one of the greatest ever heard in any criminal trial, was directly responsible for the defense change of plans today. It had been expected that Bachrach would speak all of today and part of tomorrow, as his brother attorney did.

Like Darrow, Bachrach went back to olden times when children were executed for crimes and then held up to Judge Caverly the progress that since has been made in the treatment of juvenile criminals and delinquents. He read from one ancient volume where a little girl of seven was burned to death for killing her mistress because the law at that time forbade the hanging of persons under 14 years of age.

M'COY TO ENTER NOT GUILTY PLEA

Visits Dying Mother, Telling Her 'I Didn't Do It'; Defense Lacks Funds

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—"Kid" McCoy will plead not guilty when he is brought into court Thursday, charged with the murder of Mrs. Teresa Mors. That was definitely established today by announcement of McCoy's attorneys.

The former pugilist was back in his cell at the county jail here today, depressed and sobbing at times, following what may be his last visit to his aged mother, Mrs. Mary Selby.

Surrounded by deputy sheriffs, McCoy was taken to the home of his mother, who is dying.

"I didn't do it," were the words he gave in greeting to Mrs. Selby.

The "Kid" wept at the bedside of his mother, as she stroked his head and told him she had supreme faith in her son.

Funds for the McCoy defense are coming in slowly. Appeals sent out over the country by James J. Jeffries, former world's heavyweight champion, have met with small response, and McCoy now faces a "penniless" defense.

MUSIC TEACHER DEAD

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—Frank H. Smith, music teacher, is dead here today. He died suddenly while climbing a stairway on his way to witness a play.

Precincts Voting To Be Reported By Evening News

Tonight The Glendale Evening News will present election returns as they are received from the various Glendale and outlying precincts beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Because of the light vote being cast, it is expected local totals will be available before midnight, but in Los Angeles results will be held up for some time.

Friends of O. B. Manchester in South Pasadena this noon staged a huge parade for the candidate for supervisor in the Fifth district, and it is urged that Glendale give him a record vote.

Remember, The Glendale Evening News will be first with local election results tonight. Come to the office at 139 South Brand boulevard or telephone Glendale 4000.

SEEKING HIT AND RUN 'SCOOTERIST'

San Francisco Police Look For Red-Headed Lad Who Injured Woman

By L. C. OWEN
Special correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—This city has its full share of hit-and-run autoists—the local hospitals are kept fairly busy with their victims—but never before has it had to contend with the "hit-and-run scooterist."

Pedestrians here today were rounding corners on the nervous qui vive, and a dozen specially detailed police detectives were combing the Marina section of the city in quest of a diminutive hurtling speed demon on a 1924 model skate coaster which Sunday tallied up San Francisco's first serious hit-and-run scooter accident.

The victim of the embryo Ralph De Palma, who, according to the best description available, is 7 years old and red-headed, is Mrs. L. A. Kelly, middle-aged wife of a prosperous business man. Her injuries may prove fatal.

Mrs. Kelly had just alighted from a street car and had made her way to the sidewalk when there was a noisy rush of wheels and the auburn-haired speed maniac, half-concealed behind a tall macaroni box which comprised the "hood" of his engineless racer, swerved around the corner.

There was a juvenile whistle of warning and a grinding of shoe leather as the youthful annihilator of distance tried to convert his pedal extremities into an imitation of four-wheel brakes.

But too late! The juggernaut struck the woman victim before she could escape and before its speed could be diminished. She was lifted off her feet by the impact and hurled half a dozen yards into the street. Bystand-

Prince Training for United States Visit

ON BOARD THE STEAMSHIP BERENGARIA, Aug. 26.—(By Wireless)—Sports and athletics occupied the greater part of the Prince of Wales' time today. He was coach for one of the tug-of-war teams.

The prince, so far, has spent most of his time either in his suite or chatting with members of his own party, disappointing the American girls who had expected him to dance in the main salon every night.

The prince is taking part in all kinds of athletics to keep himself in trim, including walking, swimming, boxing and weight-pulling.

LIGHT VOTE PREDICTED AT POLLS

Control of Legislature Is Issue Between Governor And Opponents

By ELLIS H. MARTIN
For International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—More than 1,600,000 California voters were eligible to vote in the state-wide primary election today for congressional, legislative and judicial offices.

Indications were, however, that an extremely light vote will be cast except in a few districts where hot local fights have aroused interest.

Eleven congressional districts, the eighty assembly districts and the twenty odd numbered of the forty state senatorial districts provided the list of officers seeking nomination.

Beyond stiff scraps in some of the congressional districts for the nomination, chief interest centered in the fight for the control of the next legislature.

Seek Legislature

Administration forces of Governor Richardson are endeavoring not only to hold their lines, but to strengthen control in the legislative body while anti-administration forces are endeavoring to take the legislature away from the governor.

In the congressional race two incumbents are unopposed for reelection. They are Clarence Lee in the First and Walter F. Lineberger in the Ninth. In the Second where Congressman John E. Raker seeks both the Republican and Democratic endorsement, Dr. Ernest Dozier Redding is opposing him in the Republican polls.

Fights in South

In the Eighth, Congressman Arthur M. Free is opposed by E. L. Van Dellen and in the Tenth Congressman J. D. Fredericks is opposed by Ralph L. Criswell and R. W. Richardson. Another hard fight was being waged in the Eleventh where Congressman Phil D. Swing is opposed by Senator Ed Sample.

In San Francisco a vote of about 80,000 was predicted with the possibility that it might not reach that figure.

In the state, generally, only about fifty per cent of the eligible voters were expected to go to the polls.

Observers Believe Results Will Be Slow

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—Less than a 50 per cent vote was indidated in Los Angeles at the primary election here today, according to reports that reached the office of the county registrar of voters during the forenoon. Observers do not believe that the ballots could be counted sufficiently to reach any definite conclusions until long after midnight.

CALLS RADIO CONFAB

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The third national radio conference to provide voluntary regulation of wireless communication in the United States, was called today by Secretary of Commerce Hoover to meet in Washington on September 30.

Furniture Factory Seeks Location In Glendale Vicinity

The location of a large furniture factory in this vicinity is contemplated by P. E. Kroehler of the Kroehler Manufacturing company of Chicago, who, with Mrs. Kroehler, spent yesterday with Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Dyke of 329 West Oak street.

Mr. Dyke is the patentee of the Davenport folding bed and for many years worked with Mr. Kroehler in his plants at Chicago and elsewhere. The location of such a factory in Glendale, as Mr. Kroehler proposes, he states, would bring to this city a large industry, adding a payroll that would reach up into the hundreds.

Balloting Slow In Glendale, Few Women at Polls

Only Small Percentage of Registered Electorate Voted by Noon

Glendale voters are reluctant about "saying it with ballots" in today's primary election, according to a tabulation made at noon. With a registration of approximately 13,000 voters, eligible to vote at the primary election today, only a small percentage of these voters had cast their ballots during the morning hours.

The vote in numerous precincts visited at noon, averages between thirty-five and forty voters, with only 20 per cent of these being ballots cast by women.

Indications pointed to a heavier vote during the noon hour among the men, while the majority of the ballots cast by the women is expected to be reached between 3 and 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Polls Open Until 7 P. M.

The polling places in the thirty-six precincts within the city limits opened at 6 o'clock this morning and will remain open until 7 o'clock tonight.

Friends of candidates are making every effort to get voters to the polls, while near each polling place are to be found youths passing out cards of certain candidates.

When the polls close tonight at 7 o'clock, the election returns will be telephoned or brought to the office of The Glendale Evening News as soon as possible and the result of Glendale's voting will be tabulated and the figures announced in the front office of The Glendale Evening News.

Three Main Contests

The principal races in this district are for the nomination of assemblyman and supervisor, with three candidates in the field, and the office of district attorney. The contest fo rnominations of twelve candidates for judges of the Superior court, which has been spirited during the days preceding the primary election, has resulted in a number of voters turning out at the polls to support their favorite candidates. There are twenty-six candidates for the twelve places.

LOCAL MAN CLEAR IN KIDNAP CASE

A. A. Whitney Loaned Car to Father of Children Secreted Away

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—A. C. Whitney, 1071 Raymond avenue, Glendale, has been released by the sheriff's office after an investigation that indicated that Whitney had nothing to do with the alleged kidnaping of little 7-year-old Robert C. Fitzpatrick from the home of his mother, Mrs. Gladys M. Fitzpatrick, 136 East Thirty-sixth street, last week.

The kidnaping, alleged to have been done by the boy's father, LaRoe Fitzpatrick from whom Mrs. Fitzpatrick recently secured an interlocutory decree of divorce, was done with the aid of Whitney's car, however. Whitney admitted he had loaned the machine to Fitzpatrick. Whitney was arrested Saturday night at Burbank.

Child Fatally Burned

The custody of two children, Robert and a girl, aged 3, was awarded the mother by decree of the superior court. Six weeks ago, it is alleged, Fitzpatrick kidnaped the youngest child and fled towards Arizona. In the Mojave desert the gasoline tank of his car blew up. The little girl was fatally burned. He returned for the older boy, deputy sheriffs reported.

With his brother, Forrest Fitzpatrick, he is alleged to have taken Robert and gone to Burbank. From there they prepared to leave for Canada, where they have relatives. They had gone before the deputy sheriffs were notified.

Because they have left the state it is asserted they are outside the jurisdiction of the court on a contempt charge, issued after Fitzpatrick had disobeyed the court order giving his wife custody of the children.

DAWES PLAN AGREEMENT DELAYED

European Jealousies Appear To Complicate Plans For Reparations

By HAL O'FLAHERTY
Special Cable to the Glendale Evening News and the Chicago Daily News

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The transitional period between the agreement reached at the London conference and the actual application of the Dawes plan is proving far more troublesome than anyone anticipated.

Suspicions long held in the background are reappearing in new forms, offering complications not only for the politicians in the work of making the Dawes plan a practical instrument for reparations payments, but the financiers upon whom will fall the responsibility for floating the $200,000,000 loan for Germany. British industry fears German competition, but feels that it could cope with German industrialists if they were left to work out their destiny unaided by France.

Franco-German Pact

France will conclude, shortly, a trade agreement with Germany leaving Great Britain's vital industries, such as mines, iron and textiles, facing a combination powerful enough to dominate Europe. Fears are felt that this combination will spread from commercial to government circles with the result that Prime Minister MacDonald has decided to appoint an advisory committee consisting of representatives of the principal British industries to assist and guide the government in dealing with the new industrial combination on the continent.

As soon as the Dawes scheme begins operating, the advisory committee will concentrate its attention on commercial treaties between Germany and the other allies, analyzing the effect and the reach of the combination, and suggesting methods of counterbalancing it. It is likely that several of the committeemen will be detailed to study the system of deliveries in kind and the character of the investments made by the transfer committee under the Dawes plan.

Herriot's Attitude

Premier Herriot's success in securing approval of his work during the London conference is very satisfactory itself, but his denial that he offered to keep the

DELAY DASH TO INDIAN HARBOR

U. S. Aviators Postpone Hop To Labrador Port for Two Days Longer

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The hop of the American round-the-world flyers from Greenland to Indian Harbor, Labrador, will be delayed until Thursday, August 28, according to a dispatch today from Lieutenant Lowell Smith to the chief of the air service. There was no explanation of the decision to hold up the flight for another day.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.

ON BOARD U. S. CRUISER RICHMOND, Aug. 26.—By Wireless.)—The Richmond was steaming today to Indian Harbor, Labrador, where it will arrive tomorrow with Lieutenant Antonio Locatelli, rescued Italian air ace. Locatelli and his three companions have recovered from having drifted three days in their seaplane in the North Atlantic.

The finding of Locatelli now has switched all interest back to the performances of Lieutenant Lowell Smith and Lieutenant Erik Nelson, the two remaining United States around-the-world flyers.

Locatelli is keenly interested in the last leg of the trans-Atlantic flight. He had hoped to be able to accompany the Americans to Labrador.

Tells Tale of Wreck

Locatelli gave Rear-Admiral Thomas P. Magruder and other American naval officials on board the Richmond a thrilling account of his disappearance and adventure at sea.

Motor trouble forced his plane down between 2 and 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. It had been traveling at terrific speed, the mechanicians saying this was necessary because of the heavy load—it bore four human beings as well as petrol, water and food.

The machine struck the wind-tossed waves with a severe bump.

Mechanics Foiled

The sea was choppy under an Arctic wind. The mechanics were unable to make the necessary repairs. Darkness settled down with the plane drifting eastward. The men became seasick.

All the rescued—Locatelli, Gio-

EUROPEANS REAP GOLDEN HARVEST

American Tourists Heading Home After Spending Billion Abroad

By HARVEY ANDERSON
Special correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Having laid something more than a billion dollars in the lap of Europe, the great American tourist horde is headed back for the United States.

Seventeen liners have sailed within the last 48 hours from Cherbourg, Southampton and other European ports, bearing the returning vanguard of the greatest force that America has sent to foreign soil since Pershing took his expeditionary soldiers across.

Next week and the succeeding three will produce in New York harbors scenes comparable only to those that occurred under the old immigration rules, when liners jockeyed for position in the lower bay and dashed up the river to unload their cargoes and return for more.

Wales Is Coming

Principal interest centers, of course, in the arrival of the Berengaria, which is bearing the Prince of Wales and as many other passengers as could be packed between her bulkheads. Three hundred marriageable girls, all Americans, some school teachers, some heiresses, are aboard her.

The fleet accompanying the Berengaria is bringing 2,500 persons, only a smattering of the 265,000 who have gone over since the first of May to pay tribute at Shakespeare's shrine on the Avon, to gamble at the baccarat tables at Monte Carlo and at Deauville, or to indulge in the milder sport of visiting the cathedral towns.

This year's armada to Europe was the greatest in the history of the country. Steamship officials profess to see no special reason for it. It is true that the Sulgrave Institution made a pilgrimage; that the Bar association and the Associated Advertising clubs of the World held their annual conventions there, and that some

SCORES HURT, HUGE LOSS IN STORM, NEW YORK REPORTS

Virginia Coast Hit by Fast Gale With Accompanying High Waves and Rain

NEW YORK, Aug. 26—A storm of hurricane proportions, moving up the seaboard from the West Indies in a 300-mile path, threw itself on New York today in a way that crippled traffic, caused heavy damage and brought injury to forty persons in New York city alone within the first few hours after dawn.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Sweeping northeastward in a path three hundred miles wide, one of the most violent hurricanes within memory struck the Virginia and North Carolina coasts early today and then moved through Chesapeake bay toward Maryland and New Jersey.

Scores of ships were driven into Atlantic harbors as the fifty-mile-an-hour wind struck the coast, tearing down telegraph and telephone lines and causing widespread property damage.

At an early hour today no loss of life had been reported to the navy department of the United States coast guard.

Ships Ride Out Storm

Reports received here said that ships in the vicinity of the Bahamas rode out the storm throughout the night instead of trying to reach the American coast. These were the Creole, the Hugh Lua, the Eloccidente and the Standard Oil tanker William Rockefeller.

Their reports to coast radio stations told of "tremendous waves" and a high wind.

There was only one casualty in Washington. Mrs. Helen Mary Milton of Evanston, Ill., wife of a naval lieutenant, was fatally injured when the automobile in which she was riding, turned over in a rainstorm near Cumberland, Md.

Islanders Near Drowning

Heeding the warning issued by the weather bureau, shipping in the Hampton Roads district suffered little.

A wind velocity of 75 miles an hour was attained at Cape Hatteras, and Occracoke island, near Beaufort, N. C., with a population of 600, was entirely under water at the height of the storm.

PLANS TO STAGE COMMUNITY PLAY

'A Night In Dreamland' Will Be Presented by Cast Of Local Players

BURBANK, Aug. 26.—A community pageant is to be staged here September 4 to 6, inclusive, at the Benmar Hills garden hall, under the auspices of J. Wellington.

The name of the performance is "A Night in Dreamland." It will be strictly a community affair and Mr. Wellington desires everyone who has stage talent or inclination in that direction, to meet for rehearsals, which are being held in the hall. The entertainment includes dancing, singing, pantomime and real acting; there is a phase for every one who has a liking for the footlights.

Alarm Brings Crowd

Like a clap of thunder out of a clear sky several kinds of pandemonium broke loose Saturday shortly after noon at the corner of San Fernando boulevard and Olive avenue. A coupe came down Olive avenue with huge clouds of smoke pouring out of every pore. It stopped straddle of the button at the aforesaid street intersection and out jumped a bareheaded man. It was Freeman Lang, who seemed to be in all kinds of agony. Sirens began to sound in all directions, the fire truck came tearing down the street, and it wasn't very long until an excited mob had appeared on the scene.

And it soon developed that this was the chief purpose of the demonstration—to bring the mob to the scene. In the excitement and out of the cloud of smoke mysteriously appeared large placards bearing the inscription, "Defense Day, September 12."

Y Boys to Camp

The scheme was concocted by the defense day committee, composed of Dr. Van Deventer, J. W. Charleville, Leonard Collins and W. H. Adams with "Doc" Wilson as chief aider and abettor.

The Burbank Hi-Y club, the older boys' organization of the local Young Men's Christian association, will be represented at the annual Hi-Y training camp to be held at Camp Leon V. Shaw on Catalina Island, August 28 to September 4, by Judson Blanchard, Emmett O'Donnell, Jack Majors and Prof. F. S. Moore.

GIVES PORTRAIT VALUE TO CHURCH

S. Thomas Commissioned To Paint Likeness of Episcopal Bishop

LA CRESCENTA, Aug. 26.—Of great interest to all residents of the valley is the news that the portrait of the Episcopal bishop of the Los Angeles diocese is to be painted by Seymour Thomas, whose portraits of famous men and women hang in the galleries of England, France and this country. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas have selected Cuddle Doon as their permanent home in California and here it is that Bishop Johnson will sit for his portrait.

Mr. Thomas, who is churchwarden of the new Episcopal church St. Luke of the Mountains, in La Crescenta, has offered to present $3000 to the building fund, the value of the portrait. This is to be raised by voluntary offerings from members and friends of the diocese. The bishop has appointed Mrs. Davis of the Bishop's Office as receiver of the subscriptions. No sum will be rejected, so that the smallest child of the church may be a subscriber.

Mr. Thomas has made this generous offer so that when completed the church of St. Luke of the Mountains will be out of debt.

Birthday Dinner

Miss Margaret Brown's birthday was the motive for the delightful party given for her by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Brown of West Montrose avenue. The affair was held at Oakmont Country club. The following guests attended: Dorothy Potter, Irene Murdock, Robert Potts, Paul McOsker and Laurence Potter. Mr. and Mrs. George Selby of Los Angeles were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Brown.

BACK HOME FROM TOUR OF EUROPE

La Crescenta Rancher Says Southland Is Magnet For Old World

LA CRESCENTA, Aug. 26.—"California for me every time." Thus did H. Biescar, owner of the famous Biescar grape and walnut ranch on North Los Angeles avenue, express his joy over being back in California after an extended tour of Europe.

Asked what the conditions in Europe were today, Mr. Biescar said: "Terrible, in central Europe. In France they are beginning to recover themselves, plowing the fields and cultivating some of the battle fields, but others are being kept for sightseers. In Paris it is not so bad on account of the tourists, but everywhere there are wrecks of men. Everywhere talk of preparation for war is in the air.

"The attitude toward Americans in France and Czecho-Slovakia is good, but in lower Germany, through which we passed, not so good.

Stars and Stripes

Probably the most thrilling episode the travelers experienced during their trip was in Prague, the capital of the new republic. A parade of all the soldiers was being held to celebrate their independence day. Those who had fought with the Americans in the American uniform, those with the French in that uniform, the Russians in the Russian uniform. Only Americans were allowed to stand on the steps of the town hall, all others were kept off by soldiery, when to the great surprise and joy of the La Crescentans the Stars and Stripes floated proudly at the head of the columns.

"Do people know of California very much? Do they? Why, they would fly over here if they could, so anxious are the Europeans to come. They speak of Los Angeles; that is the name most frequently heard, never San Francisco, New York sometimes, but California all the time."

Mr. and Mrs. Biescar were accompanied by their daughters, Mildred and Henrietta. They were to have travelled extensively through Italy, Germany and England, but received a cablegram announcing the serious illness of Mrs. Biescar's mother in Los Angeles.

SHOES IN DEMAND

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—The shoe industry here is showing new life and retailers are pressing for delivery of school shoes, the volume of trade in which usually runs above 75,000,000 pair.

ATTACHED SCARFS

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The scarf which women still insist upon wearing is now sometimes attached to the hat brim in back. Or it may wrap the crown and descend in long ends about the neck.

Commission May Order Lower Pullman Fares

ST. PAUL, Aug. 26.—Fifty million dollars paid annually by passengers as surcharges on pullman fares is likely to be saved the traveling public, it was revealed by testimony offered at the meeting of the Interstate Commerce commission. Introduction of the evidence caused a sensation which necessitated hurried adjournment of the hearing.

This became known after Alexander F. Brevillier of the commission's Chicago bureau, appeared at the meeting with several sheets of figures, purporting to show that the Pullman company expenditures for 1922 and 1923 were considerably less than that claimed by the company's experts on the witness stand.

Pershing Pays Visit To Buffalo Bill Tomb

DENVER, Aug. 26.—"Buffalo Bill, how much the west owes you!" This was the tribute paid the famous western plainsman, William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) by General John J. Pershing while standing at attention at the grave of the old scout and Indian fighter atop Lookout mountain, it was learned today.

POSTPONE TRIAL IN MURPHY SUIT

Hearing on Revocation of License Scheduled for Court Tomorrow

The trial of J. A. Menard, manager of Murphy's Comedians, scheduled for 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Burbank township Justice court, held at the Glendale City Hall, was postponed until 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, August 27, because Judge Kenneth C. Newell of Pasadena, who was to preside, failed to arrive until 4 o'clock.

Judge Harry W. Chase of Glendale, who ordinarily presides over this court, had asked Judge Newell, Pasadena justice of the peace, to take his place, inasmuch as he felt disqualified by reason of having already expressed opinions on the subject involved. It is within the power of the county board of supervisors to revoke the license of Murphy's Comedians to conduct a tent theatre at Central avenue and Stocker street, Casa Verdugo.

Plaintiff On Hand

Mr. Menard was present in the court as plaintiff, having been charged by R. C. Addison, county license inspector, with operating his theatre without a license. The suit is regarded as a test of certain issues involved, and is of a friendly nature.

J. M. Blankenship and John Everson, both Glendale attorneys, represented Mr. Menard, and will conduct his case before Judge Newell on Wednesday afternoon. Murphy's Comedians are now playing "The Stampede," a western drama, and a packed tent is said to be a nightly occurrence. The prices are popular and the large following of these capable players declares this is one of the best plays they have yet shown.

The court room was crowded yesterday afternoon with friends of Murphy's Comedians, who had come to see this case tested in court.

Planners to Hold Hearing on Lomita Avenue Setback

Petitions were filed with the City Planning Commission for a 10-foot setback line on Lomita avenue between Brand boulevard and Glendale avenue, instead of the present 25-foot setback line, at last night's meeting of this body, held at the City Hall, Chairman T. W. Watson presiding. It was voted to hold a public hearing on this matter at the next meeting, date of which will be announced later.

Representatives of the Fourth Street Improvement association were present and discussed with the commission the matter of equalizing grades on Fourth street, with a view to eventually lowering the Pacific Electric tracks. J. H. Randall, president of the association and a member of the commission, outlined the plan developed by the Glendale engineering department, of making an 18-inch cut on the upper side and an 18-inch fill on the lower side, thus accomplishing the desired result. Several subdivision maps were adopted. P. J. Hayselden, secretary of the City Planning commission, was not present at the meeting.

COUPLE HONORED ON ANNIVERSARY

Sixty Years of Wedded Life Bring Good Wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Newby

Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Newby celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary yesterday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. T. W. Partin, 516 Fairmont street, when she entertained with an informal reception in their honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Newby were married in Cameron, Mo., August 25, 1864, and now, after three score years have rolled by, and they have shared the joys and sorrows of life together, they are celebrating their sixtieth wedding anniversary. Mrs. Newby, before her marriage, was Miss Unity S. Trice. She moved to Cameron with her parents when only 7 years of age, attended school there, and in later years she and Mr. Newby were married and made their permanent home there until a few weeks ago, when they came west with their daughter to make their home in Glendale.

Four Generations

They have three children living, Mrs. S. D. O'Donnell of St. Joseph, Mo.; Ed Newby of Cameron, Mo., and Mrs. T. W. Partin of Glendale. Only Mrs. Partin was able to attend the anniversary celebration.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Newby have only recently come to Glendale, they have made a host of new friends who called during the day to shower them with congratulations and good wishes.

A pleasurable feature of the day was the presence of four generations, Mr. and Mrs. Newby's daughter, Mrs. T. W. Partin, of Glendale; their granddaughter, Mrs. E. C. Ray, and great granddaughter, Virginia Ray, of Los Angeles.

Opens Musical Studio

MISS SEWELL NORTON, the latest addition to Glendale's musical circles, shown in a costume of Colonial days, in which she appeared recently in one of her concerts.

Miss Sewell Norton, musician and voice specialist, recently came to Glendale to make her home, and is now located at 1421 Dorothy drive. Miss Norton, who is a talented pianist and vocalist of considerable repute, is opening a studio for piano and voice at her home.

Miss Norton has had twelve years' experience abroad and is said to be a capable teacher of both voice and piano. She studied voice under Senor Moratti of Berlin and piano under the late Martin Krause. She is said to possess a glorious lyric soprano voice with a warm and sympathetic quality which gained her most deserving compliments in concert abroad.

SYSTEM OF FIRE PATROLS FORMED

Horsemen and Motorists to Guard Verdugo Hills Against Outbreaks

A survey of the region north of Glendale, in which it is planned to establish fire patrols and lookout stations, was conducted yesterday by P. J. Hayselden, chief of the Glendale unit of the Angeles Forest Protective association; Stuart J. Flintham, county forester, and J. A. Graves, one of Flintham's deputies, and resulted in the adoption of plans to safeguard the hills and the city itself from the menace of forest and brush fires.

Beginning today, two experienced mounted men will patrol the mountains north of the city, covering the entire Verdugo range between Glendale and Burbank, and maintain a constant watch for any outbreak in the folds of the hills and in the canyons. Two other motor patrols will cover the roads along the foot of the mountains, one running from Burbank to Brand boulevard and the other from Brand boulevard to Montrose.

Install Phones

Two lines of insulated telephone wires will lead to four telephone boxes that will be installed along the fire breaks, so as to be easy of access, and these wires will connect with the entire Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company's system, so that any alarm may be spread all over the region from which help may be expected.

The cost of the patrols and the installation of the telephone wires will be met from the appropriation of $5000 that was made a few days ago by the Board of Supervisors for this purpose.

A meeting of the Glendale unit will be held Wednesday night, August 27, in the City hall, at which all the crew leaders and members are asked to be present.

MEN OF MILITARY AGE IN CITY ASKED TO ASSEMBLE

American Legion Post Committee in Charge Of Arrangements; Preliminary Orders For September 12 Are Received

Memories of the days of 1917, when the man-strength of the United States was assembled at designated points before being sent to training camps and later to France, will be reenacted in Glendale on September 12, as well as other cities throughout the country, in observance of National Defense day.

Glendale will be the mobilization point on that date for the unit designated as the One Hundred Eighty-second Infantry brigade of the Ninety-first Division. Arrangements for National Defense Day in Glendale are in the hands of a committee of the local post of the American Legion.

E. W. Gilliland, second vice commander of the local post, has been named captain of the staff of the brigade committee, and details for the affair are to be worked out at a meeting scheduled for Thursday at the American Legion hall, 610 East Broadway. Representatives from the civic and fraternal orders of the city will be asked to attend this meeting.

Orders Received

Orders for the mobilization have been received by Captain Gilliland from the commanding officer of the brigade, forwarded by J. W. Sutphen, lieutenant colonel of infantry, and executive officer. The orders are:

"1—Glendale, Calif., has been designated as the mobilization point for the headquarters of the One Hundred and Eighty-second Infantry brigade during the ceremonies in connection with National Defense Day.

"2—You will proceed to make all necessary arrangements to turn out all members of the brigade headquarters, acting in accord with B-1, B-3 and B-4, (Glendale is known as B-2), so that these headquarters will have a strong representation in the exercises arranged by the civilian authorities of Glendale.

"3—It is the opinion of the brigade commander that the volunteers assembled, together with the assigned personnel, should equal approximately a war strength battalion.

"4—You will get in touch with such auxiliary units, which would be part of the brigade in case of emergency, asking the officers commanding these units to act with you in your plans of Defense Day."

Plans for Ceremonies

While complete plans for the day have not been worked out, it is understood that one of the features of the day will be a large parade, with city officials, prominent residents, veterans of earlier wars, and men who respond to the call to mobilize, participating. Formal military mobilization will be observed at some central point after the parade, according to the present plans.

Members of the local brigade will be residents of Glendale, in accordance with the instructions of officials in Washington, who have arranged the details of the mobilization so that residents of any city will not be required to report at another city.

Local authorities and those in charge of the plans for National Defense Day point out that those who enroll on September 12 will not be obligating themselves for war service, be required to join any military unit, or be subject to immediate call for army duty. The action of those who respond on that day, according to officials, will be to represent for the time being the number of men who would enroll, enlist or be selected for service in case of a national emergency.

Athletic Activities Of Women Outlined

Further plans for activities of the Women's Athletic club were made yesterday morning by the board of directors, meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. J. H. Toal, at 367 West Colorado street.

Adoption of by-laws was considered and plans made for the various activities, swimming, tennis, golf, gymnasium work and hiking. Chairmen of these departments are to be appointed at once.

Club members met this afternoon in Patterson Avenue park for exercises and swimming. They will meet again in the park at 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Previous to the general meeting the board of directors will meet.

The charter is now closed and application must be made for membership. Those desiring to join the club can communicate with Mrs. Paul E. Webb at Glendale 3959.

During his visit here he attended the florists' convention in session at Los Angeles. Mr. Simpson and daughter have been visiting many interesting and scenic points of the southland. Mr. Simpson visited here five years ago and is greatly surprised at the remarkable growth and progress Southern California has made during that time.

Glendale Musician to Give Radio Recital

Wesley Kuhnle of 111 West Maple avenue, talented and well known musician, has been asked to broadcast an organ recital over the Bible Institute radio station KJS on Thursday night, August 28 from 8 till 9 o'clock.

Tom Ingersoll Booked To Address Realtors

"Vacation is over—now for business" will be the topic of an address to be delivered before the Glendale Realty Board at its weekly luncheon in the Alley Inn on Wednesday by Tom Ingersoll, secretary of the Los Angeles Realty Board.

Reports of several of the convention committees will also be heard.

Local Undertakers To Attend Convention

The annual convention of the California Funeral Directors' association, that is being held this week at Pasadena, will be attended by members of the association from Glendale, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Phillips of the Jewel City Undertaking company planning to take part in most of the sessions. John Eyerick of Kiefer & Eyerick will go over later in the week, and L. G. Scovern will also participate in some of the meetings, which will last till Friday.

The sanitary system and streets of Kingston, Jamaica, will be improved at a cost of $2,000,000.

Christian Endeavor Society Holds Meet

A business meeting and party was held by the members of the lookout department of the Intermediate Christian Endeavor society of the Glendale Presbyterian church, last night, August 25, at the residence of the superintendent, Howard L. Brown. Harold Parker, the director, conferred with the various department members who attended, in making the plans for the month of September.

The importance of high school recruiting was brought up and strongly stressed in the discussion. The need of personal work with the students enrolled in the Sunday morning classes was also realized as shown by the discussion.

The I. C. E. Companion, a little paper published by the society each month, is being put out by this department for the month of September, being edited by John L. Simpson.

Light refreshments were served, following which a period of music and singing was enjoyed. Those attending were: Esther Edmonds, Ruth Jeckle, Mildred Thompson, Ronald West, Harold Jones, Harold Parker, Fred Fallis, Lyle McAllister, Neal Sooy, Howard L. Brown, John Simpson.

Wandering Turtle Browsing In Yard, Creates Excitement

The epidemic of turtles which recently visited Glendale appears to have broken out afresh. Early this morning a woman who declined to give her name called The Glendale Evening News office in some consternation, stating that one of these roving members of the genus Testudinidae had wandered into her yard and was cruising about, evidently in search of sustenance.

Thinking he might be either "Old Joshua" or "H. B." who figured in the local news some while back, Mrs. X looked over his shell—but alas, he was neither of these. In fact, she declares, this reptile has no initials whatever carved on his haberdashery but is very sweet and doubtless belongs to some nice boy. He may be retrieved by calling Glendale 464-J.

Japanese to Stage Demonstrations of Battle Eight Days

TOKIO, Aug. 26.—Announcement was made today of plans of the military and aviation services for an eight-day "defense" demonstration beginning September 8. The demonstration will consist of maneuvers at Osaka when an imaginary enemy will attack the port from the air and the army and air service will defend it.

"Common Cent" Introduces Himself

"I am 'Common Cent.' I am just a tiny disk of copper, measuring only three-quarters of an inch across my middle. But mistake not to despise me for my littleness. I am a member of the family of 'Common Cents.' Alone I may seem quite feeble, but in company with my fellows I perform miracles for those who know best how to use me. Whene'er you look upon me, think of what Franklin said: 'Take care of the pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves.'"

Every man, woman or child has in his or her heart a cherished ambition.

To the lad it may be a hoped-for pair of skates, a bicycle, a radio set. To the man, a motorcar, a business of his own, security in old age. To the woman, a wanted bit of furniture, a home,university training for her children.

Oft these ambitions seem well-nigh impossible of attainment—a mirage always luring on, but ever out of reach. But not to him who has learned the lesson. To you a dollar may seem poor in purchasing power, but in spare dollars laid aside is the achievement of your dreams.

We invite you today to start to turn your hazy ambitions into tangible, actual fact. A tiny sum deposited with us opens your account. A stated bit each week will make it grow and work for you, earning for you at 4 per cent interest; ever mounting up. Drop in and let's talk the matter over. Begin now.

STATESMANSHIP

Some one has defined a statesman as one who understands God's plan, reads aright the enigma of his age, and successfully co-operates in achieving the divine purpose.

Before the political party conventions this year a certain magazine made the charge that "there is not a single man mentioned by the press of either party that is not mediocre." There are those who are just as learned and just as discerning as the writer of that editorial who would hold a different opinion as to the statesmanship of the president and some of those who were candidates for that office. But it is all too true that many of our statesmen are only politicians, they cannot measure up to the definition of a statesman, they are too small to see, in their true relationship, all the elements of the questions that confront them, they cannot understand how history has had a bearing on the present complicated problems of the world and how the solution of them will affect all ages, all mankind. They see only with the eyes of today, the petty concerns of the day. There is too much of self in their decisions.

We need more statesmen who will take for their own the motto of Grover Cleveland, "A public office is a public trust," or of President Hayes, "He serves his party best who best serves his country." We need more men with Roosevelt's fighting honesty, Lincoln's love of humanity, Woodrow Wilson's vision.

But all of these men were misunderstood and disparaged, libeled and slandered. And it may be that some of those who are being judged now are doing their utmost to co-operate in the divine plan and that their efforts will bear fruit for good. It may be that the time will come when we shall be able to see more clearly their aims and accomplishments and more deeply appreciate their statesmanship.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD AS LITERATURE

There has actually been discovered a man who reads the Congressional Record. Henry Fountain Ashurst when a boy of ten wrote after his name in his school geography, "United States Senator from Arizona," and twenty-six years later that title was his. And now Senator Ashurst makes the astonishing confession that he began at the age of ten to read the Congressional Record, and that for the past twenty-four years he has religiously devoted an hour a day to that great but hitherto unappreciated work. He finds in it, he says, more history, more philosophy and more rhetoric, than in any other publication in the world. (We have no doubt about the rhetoric.) "If limited to only one thing to read," he advises, "by all means let it be the Congressional Record."

His literary tastes, if nothing else, distinguish Senator Ashurst and make him unique. He has done what no one else ever thought of doing. But, all jokes aside, we may hear from this Senator again. At twenty-one he was in the Arizona legislature and in his second term was speaker of the House. He has been cowboy, deputy sheriff, lumber jack and newspaper reporter. He aspired to be United States Senator from Arizona and he got there. And now it is said he aspires to be President of the United States.

TESTS FOR CITIZENSHIP

One of the principles of Booker T. Washington's life and one that he tried always to instill in the minds of his people was that the way to secure respect is not to demand it but to earn it, and he taught them by his own life of unselfish devotion to them and labor for them how they could earn the respect of each other and of the white race.

This great teacher saw no hope for the negro in conferring upon him political power until he had the capacity to use it intelligently. He is said to have declared he believed it would have been better to make the possession of a certain amount of education or property, or both, a test for the exercise of the franchise, but that test should apply to the white and black races alike. He made it clear that he believed taking part in the government of others is a responsibility to be earned and not a natural right nor a privilege to be universally granted.

How far we are from the ideals of this great colored teacher. We do not prize the right of citizenship enough to use it, much less to earn it as he would have us do. But if we were forced to work for the privilege of voting we might appreciate it more.

SEEKING TRUTH

There has been an increasing tendency of late toward the seeking of knowledge along lines of mental and spiritual understanding. The tendency is a good one and arises from a desire for a substantial foundation upon which to place a belief in religion and immortality.

But too many of these seekers after knowledge go to the wrong place and get into deep waters. They are seeking truth but they find error. Cultivation of the mind and religion should bring happiness and cheer, but we hear all too often of one who has dug into mystic lore only to become morbid and to plan crime or contemplate suicide. A study of oriental religions, while no doubt they contain some good, has brought disaster into more than one life. Only a short time ago a school boy took his own life as the result of such studies, according to his parents.

The Bible offers truth and hope and light, but it is too common. Some feel that there is some distinction in delving into musty, mystic lore.

I DON'T KNOW

Nearly everyone has the subconscious desire to make others believe he knows everything. It is so difficult to acknowledge ignorance. When a book is mentioned, with what cunning do we try to maneuver the conversation to cover the fact that we haven't read it. When a person of distinction is being discussed, how hard it is to bring oneself to the point where one can say, "Who is he? I never heard of him." Instead we sidestep and evade until we get some clue as to whether this personage is a musician or a statesman or an author. When some one asks who is the king of Siam or what is the scientific name for the potato bug, how it tears our souls to be compelled to acknowledge that we do not know.

Maybe this trait is a good one in some cases. It may encourage us to search for information. When we are asked to do some task and have not the courage to say, "I don't know how," we may subsequently learn that we do know how and that we can do the work.

At any rate it should be no disgrace to say "I don't know."

IT SOMETIMES HAPPENS

Falling in Love

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Falling in love is one of the unaccountable phenomena of the human race.

The Orientals explain it by claiming that we have had a previous existence and that those in the present existence touch us who have some hold on us, due to a life that is past.

Whether we accept this explanation or not, there is no doubt that falling in love is one of the inexplicable peculiarities of our race.

It is conceded also with the creative instinct, and it is safe to say that those who are not capable of falling in love with anything are not capable of creative work, either in the liberal arts or elsewhere.

It is a well known fact that many famous men have been reputed famous lovers; this has been set down in their disfavor, as proving that they were loose morally, when, as a matter of fact, morals had nothing to do with it.

Love was simply an essential demand of their nature. They had to be in love with something in order to do their best work. Much of the vagaries of those who have achieved fame can be thus explained.

It is not that they lack a sense of the responsibilities of life, or that they are not willing to undertake them, but that they need for their sustenance an enthusiasm that is only bred in them by the presence of affection.

It is a mistake to think that any person is too old to need the fire given him by love. While there is life there is love, or should be.

It is well for those who are supremely endowed with the capacity for affection, if they are endowed also with those moral inhibitions which prevent them from indulging their capacity in forbidden directions.

It would be well also for the friends of great men to remember this need of their nature and to feed it properly. No one can exist in a constant atmosphere of negation, and fire that is suppressed in one direction will break out in another.

Today's Poem

LUCY WEBSTER

Lucy's the village seamstress; grim and gray,
Flat-chested, querulous in words and tones,
One easily her graceless speech condones,
So deft and sure her skill with dresses gay
Or sternly somber. Her censorious way
Of cutting naught of which she disapproves
Perchance some young thing to compunction moves,
And her young brides are like a breath of May.

Uncompromising, through long hours she slaves,
But not one single scrap of village news
Escapes her ear; and each choice bit she saves,
Her weak, bedridden brother to amuse;
And everything she makes—none guesses it—
She tries on, bravely, for his benefit.

Who's Who

Friends of Col. William J. Donovan, recently appointed assistant attorney general of the U. S., point out that his record as U. S. attorney for the western district of New York demonstrates his fitness for the new post tendered him.

In his new berth, as assistant to Attorney General Stone, Donovan becomes virtually head of the secret service and will supervise the enforcement of all federal laws with the exception of the prohibition and anti-trust measures.

The Assistant Attorney General studied law in Columbia University under Mr. Stone while the latter was professor in the law school. He is a trustee of Columbia University.

Colonel Donovan is one of two men who for gallant conduct with the American Expeditionary Forces in the World War received the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Distinguished Service Cross and the Distinguished Service Medal. He was wounded three times and won the title of Colonel "Wild Bill" Donovan of the Fighting Sixty-ninth.

In February, 1922, Colonel Donovan was appointed United States Attorney at Buffalo by President Harding. Since then he has conducted a persistent campaign against the bootlegging and narcotic rings.

Colonel Donovan was born in Buffalo in 1883, was graduated from Columbia College in 1905 and from the Columbia Law School in 1907. He is a member of the law firm of Donovan, Raichle & Depew of Buffalo.

Earl J. Davis, whose post in the Department of Justice is now taken by Colonel Donovan, has been selected by Senator Couzens of Michigan as special counsel for the Senate committee investigating the Internal Revenue Bureau. The committee expects to resume its investigation about Sept. 1.

AH, YES!

"Is Mr. Perkins at home?" inquired the caller.

"Which one, sir? There are brothers living here," said the maid.

For a moment the caller looked puzzled, then he had an idea.

"The one who has a sister living in St. Louis," he explained.

The Ravings Of a Grouch

Are the alienists and psychiatrists who examine criminals and testify at their trials entirely mentally responsible themselves? That is the question that sometimes comes to me when I read their testimony. It seems to me there should be some authority who could put a stop to this making a farce of a court of justice as the attorneys and the alienists are wont to do as a last resort after a crime has been proved and even confessed.

The fact of insanity should be proved or disproved before court action is taken. If the prisoner is insane then there is no reason to put the state to the expense of trying him. If he is found to be mentally responsible, justice should take its course.

When the prosecution and the defense both hire alienists and the results of their examination vary according to which side pays them the public feels that the criminal is not the one who should undergo mental tests. The public knows that when the crime has been established and fastened upon the prisoner and there is no possible way out, then alienists are brought in as a last resort.

If I were on trial for murder or any other crime I am sure I should leave no stone unturned to save myself even though I had committed the deed as charged. If I were an attorney for a man or woman accused of crime I would use every means in my power to free him even though I knew him to be guilty. I have no doubt that my reputation as an attorney would mean more to me than justice and the protection of society from a murderer.

It is not my contention that a criminal should not have a fair trial. I believe no stone should be left unturned to insure this to the man or woman charged with the most atrocious crime. But it seems to me that a judge should have the power to rule out testimony such as a great deal of that given by alienists that is irrelevant and in some cases even childish.

In a sense no one commits a crime unless he is suffering from mental aberration of a sort. One who is entirely mentally sound and wholesome has no criminal tendencies and knows the consequences of crime. But a criminal is as dangerous to society whether the alienists pronounce him insane or not.

AMATEURS NEED GARDENING DATA

Milton Sills Tells Florists Of Troubles Beginner Encounters Here

By MARIAN MARSHALL
For Southland News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 26.—Filmland's most noted amateur gardener speaks:

Worthless textbooks and lack of proper guidance are the bugbears of the amateur gardener who comes from the east to make his future home in California, Milton Sills, noted stage and screen star and foremost Hollywood amateur gardener, told the Horticulturists' and Nurserymen's Association of America, assembled here in annual session at the Ambassador hotel.

Speaking on the subject of "Possibilities of Gardening in Southern California," Sills stressed the desirability of educating newcomers regarding the altered conditions which confront them here in creating and maintaining gardens, which make their eastern concepts entirely worthless.

"Why, half the hardy annuals of the east in many cases are perennials here, but how is the new arrival to know this?" exclaimed Sills in the course of his address.

Sills stated that he had found eastern textbooks valueless as guides for Southern California horticulturists and pleaded for constructive steps in the direction of extending aid to hundreds of local flower and plant raisers freshly arrived from the east, who become discouraged after their local maiden efforts.

HEAT PROSTRATION—No. 2

"It isn't the heat—it's the humidity?" You have said this very often, no doubt. Do you really know what it means, and is it true that it is the humidity rather than the heat that causes heat prostration? Yes, to a large degree, it is true.

By humidity we mean the moisture in the air. The animal body under normal conditions has a constant temperature. The human temperature is 98.6 degrees, Fahrenheit. This normal temperature is maintained through a balance between the heat production of the body and the heat loss from the body, and it is regulated by a center in the brain (possibly more than one center) known as the thermogenic or heat regulation center.

The heat is produced in the body largely by the chemical processes or oxidation of the food products in the muscles. These chemical processes are increased by muscular effort. Therefore, muscular effort also increases heat production.

The heat leaves the body through the lungs on the expired air and through the skin. The heat is lost through the skin by conduction and radiation, and by evaporation of the perspiration. The amount of heat lost depends upon the amount of water in the body, clothing, and upon the temperature, moisture and motion of the surrounding air. It is found that where air is in motion, artificially, by electric fans, or by natural breezes, the evaporation is more rapid.

Apparently the evaporation of the perspiration is the most important cooling process, or the most important factor in the heat loss from the body. Under conditions of high moisture (high humidity) in the atmosphere, the perspiration does not evaporate so rapidly, and therefore, there is a greater retention of heat in the body. So it is largely true that "it is not the heat, but the humidity." (The reason California summers are as delightful as its winters is because the humidity is low.)

As early as 1775 (Tice's Medicine) there were some experiments to prove the humidity theory. Some doctors found that in confining themselves in a closed room with the temperature as high as 239 degrees, they could remain for fifteen minutes without an elevation of body temperature, if the air was dry. In another experiment, with the temperature at only 120 degrees in moist air, their body temperatures were elevated to 100 degrees. Subsequent experiments have proved this fact—that a high temperature does not affect the body temperature so long as evaporation of perspiration goes on.

Yesterday I gave some rules for the prevention of heat prostration. We will review them briefly.

During exceedingly hot weather the diet should be lighter than usual and should consist mostly of dairy products, salads and fruits. Take tea and coffee in great moderation, no alcohol, no nicotine. Drink a great deal of water—12 to 15 glasses, during the day, so as to have sufficient for copious perspiration. Keep the bowels well regulated. Take as many cold baths as possible or cold sponges. (Let the children put on their bathing suits and play under the sprinklers. You can do that, too.) Wear as light weight and as few clothes as possible and keep out of the direct sun. Try to have no physical or mental work during the hottest part of the day. Keep the electric fan going to keep the air in motion.

Tomorrow we will tell you what to do for heat prostration.

Golden Flood Loosed By Yankee Tourists

of the big lines, particularly the Cunard, turned the third-class accommodations over to school teachers and students exclusively, but these constituted only a small part of the crowd that went out of American ports. Besides that 265,000 approximately, at least 40,000 Americans went out of Canadian ports.

Flood of Gold

The only reason for it is that the Americans could afford it this year. The London Association, a sort of Chamber of Commerce, issued a statement this week that 40,000 Americans were passing through London daily, either for sight seeing, or en route on tours through the provinces. These 40,000, the London Association said, have spent an average of $7,000,000 in London since the rush began. On that basis, shipping men figure the American tourists have left something like $644,000,000 in the English city in the past three months.

The tourist rush started the first week in June, shortly after the vacation period began. The average of outgoing passengers in May had been something like 10,000 a week. It jumped suddenly for the first week in June to 20,200 and held that for a month. July was also unusually heavy. The west-bound rush begins today and lasts about a month.

The new accommodation for school teachers and students has made traveling so cheap for them that accommodations might be had for as low as $180 a round trip. On the other hand, suites may be had up to $1,000. Mountain resorts of New England have felt the pinch of the "on to Europe" movement. A New Yorker who returned from the White mountains recently brought the story that a hotel that can accommodate 500 guests had only 30 registered. The beach resorts have been similarly hit, depending chiefly upon the nearby trade.

Germany Profits

No estimate of what the tourist summer costs is available, of course. It would run into ten figures if one could count what the card sharps on the European lanes take away from the gullible American on vacation. They have had a feast this summer, although two or three of the more noted, including the "Nevada Kid," have come to grief at the hands of the ship detectives.

The Germans have profited by the season more directly than they have since their ships were interned before the war. There seems to be no prejudice against travel on the palatial Columbus of the North German Lloyd line, which is a sister ship of the Homeric, now operated by a British line. The Columbus has been carrying full passenger lists both ways. This is the first season German passenger ships have operated to American ports since the war.

PREDICT EARLY WINTER

LONGEST FRUIT TRAIN

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 26—The longest train of southern California citrus fruit and vegetables is en route east, having been dispatched by the Santa Fe yards here over the week-end. The solid fruit train had seventy cars pulled by four engines of the 3800 type. The value of the shipment was placed at a million dollars, which definitely refutes many of the wild statements about the southland's lack of prosperity.

Low rates on shipping—$4.50 and $5.00—will be advanced to $6, the lumber trade has been advised by boat owners.

BOYS RAID ORCHARD

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 26.—"Nuts," he cried and the feast began. Joe Ryan spied the walnut orchard first. Jack Murray, his youthful traveling companion, didn't need to look twice to see the feast for them. But entering orchards in California is a high crime and misdemeanor with the result that both were haled into court here and held as vagrants. After a night's rest, a good breakfast and a word of warning from Police Chief Lester Desgrandeschamp they continued on their way, but without that "nutty" feeling.

Sends Out Call for Departmental Lists

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 26.—The call for departmental budgets on which Governor Richardson will base his "economy" budget for the next biennium was sent out today to all state agencies.

H. R. Braden, member of the state board of control, signed the budget call and apparently has been chosen to succeed Mrs. Nellie Brewer Pierce as the official budget maker. No statement of his selection has been made, however.

Braden would not make an estimate of what the budget for the next two years would total, but expressed the opinion that "it would not be very different from the present one."

Ministering to Sick and Dying Is Sacred Calling, Speaker Tells Graduates

Dr. A. W. Truman, medical superintendent of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, and secretary of the medical department of the general conference of Seventh-day Adventists, decried the creeping of commercialism, greed and self-seekers into the field of ministering to the sick and dying, in a stirring address delivered last night before the members of the 1924 graduating class of nurses of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital at the exercises held in the main auditorium of the Broadway High school.

"What a pity that self-seekers, greed and commercialism should ever have invaded the sacred calling of the ministering to the sick and the dying," Dr. Truman said. "In no other realm of human activity is it possible to so perfectly symbolize to the world the gospel of God's grace as in the ministering to the sick and suffering.

History of Nursing

"This work is as old as the book of Job. Then there is the story of the Good Samaritan, and the unselfish ministering of the Saviour, doing good and healing all manner of sickness and disease.

"The trained nurse is a product of our own generation. The work dates back to that Morning Star of the nursing profession—Florence Nightingale—who, after splendid service and unselfish work for the wounded soldiers of the Crimean war, returned to England and pioneered the way for the training of nurses by establishing in King's College hospital in London in 1856, a scientific school of nursing.

"It is interesting to note that the most of value in the healing art has come to light since her time. In 1844 general anaesthetic was discovered. Since that time Louis Pasteur did his monumental work in the discovery of disease producing germs, which laid the foundation for the study of modern bacteriology.

Gives Statistics

"Many lines in medicine once carried by the physician have been consigned to the trained nurse. In the United States there are 12,000 trained nurses in public health service. Today there are 1300 schools for the training of nurses in this country. Each year there are graduated from these schools 15,000 nurses, like a white winged army to go forth to do battle with disease. There are 150,000 trained nurses in the United States.

"Our denomination work stands four-square—evangelical, medical, educational and publishing. The right wing of our great army, made up of medical missionary workers stands ready to send the products of our nurses' training schools on to mission lands where there is dire need of combined physical and spiritual ministering.

Prepare For Heaven

"The apostle Paul declared that we brought nothing into the world and it is certain that we shall carry nothing out of it. Note that he does not say that we can not send our treasures on ahead of us, but can not carry them out with us. Our emphatic lesson taught by the Prince of Teachers was once expressed in these words:

"'Lay not up for yourselves treasures on earth where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal, but lay up for yourself treasures in heaven where neither moth nor rust corrupt and where thieves do not break through and steal." (Matt. 6:19-20.)

"Promotion, which is worth while and which will endure, results not from some selfish desire to distinguish oneself, but from earnest, untiring and unselfish service in the interests of others."

Characters Today

Dr. Truman then took the motto of the class, "Sincerity, Sacrifice, Service," and analyzed each word, telling the origin and meaning, and the application to everyday life today. He said:

"Let us take sincerity. This word really signifies 'without wax,' and comes to us from the old custom of Roman times when, because of greed and dishonesty in use of faulty materials, defects in which had been filled with wax, builders were required to sign their contracts 'sine cera.'

"There is all together too much wax built into the character of young people today. Wax will not stand any pressure. It will stand but little strain. It may do for making wax dolls, but not as a part of the structure of human character."

Dr. Truman contrasted certain striking Biblical characters who were contemporary as they lived to reveal outworkings of two opposite principles of life. Some of these were Abraham Lincoln and Lot; Moses and Balaam, and Jesus and Judas.

Graduates March In

Orchestra selections played by the Sanitarium orchestra marked the opening of the exercises. These selections were "Chanson Joyeuse" (Tobani), "Solvejg's Song" from Peer Gynt Suite (Greig), and "Aida March" from Verdi (Tobani).

As the orchestra started the strains of the "Aida March" the undergraduates filed into the auditorium and stood at attention on each side of the main aisle, while the members of the faculty, members of the board, alumni and graduates marched in. The grad-graduates took their places on the stage.

Invocation was pronounced by Dr. William J. Johnson, and a double quartet, composed of Mrs. Irving Steinel, Retta King Nelson, Carlotte Fjelstrom, Lillian M. Spaulding, Dr. L. L. Jones, C. H. Jones, Dr. C. A. Brandstater and Dr. M. A. Farnsworth sang "Judge Me, O God" (Mendelssohn).

Diplomas Presented

Following an address of Dr. Truman, Dr. R. W. Gardner and R. H. White played a cornet and horn duet; Mrs. Daisy D. Harris, R. N., gave the Florence Nightingale pledge, and Dr. H. G. Westphal presented the diplomas to the graduates. The diplomas were in French blue suede covers tied with white satin, the class colors being French blue and white.

The front of the stage was decorated with greenery and white roses, while the class motto, "Sincerity, Sacrifice, Service," stood out in white roses, with a greenery background, twenty feet long. The class colors were used in the decorations, while palms and baskets of white rosebuds, the class flower, adorned the stage. A lighted Nightingale lamp stood on the table near the diplomas. Following the exercises the orchestra played a recessional, and the graduates marched to the front of the stage, where they received the congratulations of friends and relatives.

The graduates and their homes are: Leona Cadwallader, Turlock, Calif.; Jeanne Dupes, Bakersfield, Calif.; Irene Giles, Rhinelander, Wis.; Myrtle Hanks, La Jota, Calif.; Margaret Jackson, New York City; Marjorie Kimlin, Glendale; Mildred Mundall, Phoenix, Ariz.; Daisy Randolph, Yakima, Wash.; Adeline Renius, Sioux City, Iowa; Clara Schafer, Lodi, Calif.; Marguerite Squier, Van Nuys, Calif.; Roland Christian, Boise, Idaho; Alfred Cott, London, Eng.; Iru Martin, Wirt, Okla.

S. F. Police Seeking Youthful 'Scooterist'

ers hurried to the aid of Mrs. Kelly and found it necessary to rush her to a hospital, where, in addition to painful cuts and abrasions, physicians declared she may have suffered internal injuries.

Leaves Victim Unaided

While all able-bodied males were busy helping his victim, the juvenile speed demon saw a chance to emulate his elder hit-and-run brothers with their real gas juggernauts. He hastily picked himself and his coaster out of the gutter, retrieved his cap and, with it set at a dare-devil slant on his red head, he dashed off down the hill with never a backward look.

Because of the seriousness of his victim's injuries, officers from both the traffic squad and the detective bureau have been assigned to hunt down the reckless hit-and-run scooterist. So far he has successfully evaded arrest. He probably will land within the toils of the law, however, for the police are serious in their quest.

"What will he do when he grows up and gets a real speed wagon?" they ask.

Lois Wilson Featured In 'Covered Wagon'

One of the greatest roles she has ever had! That is what Lois Wilson has in James Cruze's production of "The Covered Wagon," a new Paramount picture which will be shown at the Gateway Theatre tonight. The picture is said to be one of the finest ever screened.

Molly Wingate—If you have read Emerson Hough's novel, you'll never forget her. Pretty Molly! A daughter of the pioneer days—forced to face the terrific struggle against the wilderness and its untutored inhabitants when the west was still unwon.

Miss Wilson is ideally cast. She is Molly Wingate to the life in temperament, appearance and character, and her portrayal will be hailed as one of the real artistic achievements of the screen.

Miss Wilson rides a spirited horse which runs away with her and later is caught in a prairie fire from which she is rescued by the hero, the incident being one of the most thrilling in the action of the picture. There isn't a dull moment in Miss Wilson's scenes in the photoplay.

Woman Sues for $20,000 as Dentist Grabs Her Teeth

REDWOOD CITY, Aug. 26.—The courts of San Mateo county must rule on whether it is "forcible entry" for a dentist to open the mouth of an erstwhile patient and remove therefrom false teeth which he has created. Mrs. Josephine Mirata seeks $20,000 damages from Dr. C. M. Decker, South San Francisco dentist, who, she alleges, pried open her mouth and removed a set of false teeth.

The doctor's attorney countered with the claim that Mrs. Mirata had failed to pay for the molars and that the dentist was entitled to his property.

Mrs. Mirata wants $15,000 for "shock and suffering" because of the alleged "forcible extraction" of the false teeth and an additional $5,000 punitive damages.

Dawes Reparations Plan Is Delayed

British government informed of the details of the commercial pact with Germany only increases misgivings on this side of the channel. As a matter of fact, Herriot did not promise MacDonald to keep him informed of each move in the deal with Germany, but agreed that negotiations of a commercial treaty between the individual allies and Germany should begin simultaneously in November.

Obviously Great Britain desires to follow this course i norder to prevent one nation getting ahead of all others, which would be impossible. If all negotiations were begun at the same time and proceeded along parallel lines. Therefore Herriot was right when he denied giving th British government his promise to divulge details of the Franco-German past, his assurance relating only to the date of the negotiations.

Deny Charges

Labored efforts on the part of some sections of the British press to prove that America is still dissatisfied with the terms of the German loan appeared today. The Daily Mail again declares that Wall street financiers want Great Britain to guarantee the loan before American banks will issue bonds. American bankers in London flatly deny any such maneuvering on the part of the great New York banking houses.

In connection with the appointments under the Dawes plan, only one neutral nation has a chance at representation, a Dutchman having been agreed upon as bank commissioner. The balance of the big jobs will go to allied nations, with an American as agent general for reparations payments.

According to Mrs. Moore, the latter has attempted on previous occasions to lure other young girls away from hom.

Faces Punishment

The girls may have gone to Los Angeles and obtained work, is the theory under which Lieutenant Royle is working to locate them. The Los Angeles sheriff's office is co-operating in the search for the missing girls.

Should Miss Eden be found and convicted of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, she would be subject to a term in the penitentiary, according to Judge Lowe, or might, at the discretion of the court, be sent to a home for delinquent girls.

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Though prices of speculative stocks were inclined slightly higher today, the market was unusually dull and featureless, as were the other major financial markets. The bond market lacked a definite trend, cotton was inactive and grain markets were featured principally by the strength of corn in Chicago.

Short covering was chiefly responsible for the sharp up-turn of stock prices early today, in the course of which Cast Iron Pipe was pushed through to a new high price level at 108 1-2 and General Electric soared to 278 for a gain of 15 points over yesterday's low.

This spurt was soon over and the whole market turned dull and featureless, holding steadily at current price levels on the strength of the approval of the ratification of the Nickel Plate merger terms by the directors of the Erie railroad. Nickel Plate sold up 3 points in the early trading and Pere Marquette and other merger stocks were strong. Central of New Jersey was also strong.

Steel stocks were inclined to respond to the improving prospects for the industry as evidenced by the expansion of steel production in interior points.

U. S. Steel made a gain of 2 points over yesterday's low and independent steel stocks gained almost a point on the average.

The market was not without its weak features, some of which exhibited themselves at the start and showed no improvement throughout the day. Chandler motors sold down 2 points lower to near the low of the year, notwithstanding that its earnings in the first half of the year were more than $3 a share. Congoleum was again under attack and sold down three points under heavy offerings.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Grains were irregular today with wheat displaying a reactionary tendency in sympathy with the weakness at foreign markets in Winnepeg and Liverpool. Wheat closed 3¾ to 4c lower; corn closed 1⅜ to 2c higher; oats closed unchanged to ⅜c lower. Provisions were higher and active.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"Oh, Craig, I love you so—I love you so!" she sobbed. "I—I've had such a horrible day—!"

"Yes, I know, yes, I know, sweetheart," Craig murmured, his own face working, "but now it's over, and you're safe with Hilary and me——"

"Craig," Butterfly faltered, with brimming eyes and trembling lips, "never be mean to me again, will you? I can't—I can't bear it!"

"No, sweetheart, and I can't, either," he said, softly and tenderly.

Emma came in with the brandy, and Butterfly drank it, coughing and smiling. Her color began to come back, and she looked like a lovely child as she lay against Craig's shoulder, with one hand in both Hilary's hands as Hilary knelt beside her.

"It was nothing," she said. "But my taxi-man was drunk, and he frightened me so! He kept skidding, and cutting about corners, and finally I told him to let me out at the corner, right here, rather than come down our street. And just as I was stepping out, he jerked the car and started, and I fell down. I hooked my heel in the step, and couldn't get up, and then this policeman came, and all the crowd! I had lost my breath—you know the way you do?—and I couldn't tell him who I was for awhile, and he kept asking me who my father was! But finally I did say that this was my house, I lived here, and then it was all right!" She drew a long breath; looked restlessly about. "Where's my gold bag?" she said.

Hilary jumped to get it, lying with her furs and hat on the table near by.

"I got you something, Craig," Dora said, with a sweet, wise, childish look. And, opening the bag, she put into his hands the little miniature. "I telephoned Cecil," she explained, "and said that I must see him, and see it. He had a six o'clock train to catch at the Grand Central, and he said he would bring it there; he was going up to Rhinebeck. So I met him, and we walked down toward the end of the station, and I told him how distressed you were—that you thought I shouldn't have done it, and he gave it to me right away. He seemed awfully sorry about it. But I want you and Sis to know," Butterfly added, looking seriously from one to the other, "that there was a sort of reason for my giving Cecil this. Madame von Hinz had said that she would do it for two hundred if she might exhibit it, and Cecil said that he wished I would let her copy it for him. Then Madame said that Cecil was going to have his brother and sister help her when she goes to London, and she said she would do it for one hundred, she giving her half, and I mine, as a good-bye present to Cecil. So that was the way of it! And I never thought how—how you would take it, until today. She is doing one for you, Hilary, and that will be exhibited, I think. And you can have that one, Craig," she added, with the adorable childish timidity that had been one of the old Dora's charms.

"It's the most exquisite thing I ever saw!" Craig said, kissing the original between her earnest brown eyes. "Now let's go out to dinner. Or shall we have them bring it here—wouldn't that be fun?"

"That would be delicious!" Dora decided.

The hours that followed Hilary thought the pleasantest she had ever spent in the Spaulding house. They held for her not only the exquisite relief of realizing that all was well between Butterfly and Craig once more, but some new and infinitely comforting element as well. For the first time in their lives Dora seemed to her merely a normal woman; nothing mysterious, nothing perishable, just a human being, who was sometimes wise and sometimes foolish, but who would have to learn her lessons and pay for her mistakes like everyone else.

And with this realization Hilary suddenly felt a great freedom; she need no longer make Dora's happiness and Dora's safety her first thought. She had her own life to live, and a dozen long-cherished plans for living it. She wanted to go on with her music and her languages; not as Dora's coach and accompanist, but as Hilary Collier herself, an individual. And she decided once and for all in favor of the blue corduroy velvets.

Dora had protested against this favorite dress of Hilary's, not that it was not becoming and pretty, but that, Dora argued, Hilary could afford smarter garments now. But Hilary loved the little plain dress with its wide collar, and liked to remember the hard old days when she had chosen to wear it, year out and year in, from October to April, because it was so durable and so economical. She had bought the wide-ribbed velvet by the whole bolt, in those days, from a wholesale house, and had made the dresses herself.

She began to think with exhilaration of returning to the little Mount Holly office and all the pleasant associations and duties of her work. Her Canton tea-pot, her big Doulton cup, her piano with the discolored ivory on the high G, her marigolds and wallflowers in the kitchen window, all began to call her to a life that was her own, that did not involve pretences and affectations and surface emotions of all kinds.

"Hilary, you're absolutely a born old maid!" Butterfly told her, one Sunday morning when they were all at breakfast.

Hilary smiled over her grapefruit. Craig looked at her keenly; her beautiful, white musician's hands; her rich heavy braids of coppery hair; her white throat rising round and firm from the broad, frilled collar she wore; the wholesome fresh colors of cheeks and blue eyes and hair set off by the shadows in the dark blue velvet, and thought that he had never seen anything so domestic, so thoroughly womanly and wifely and motherly in appearance, as Hilary Collier was at this moment.

"I don't know what I've got, mental science, or new thought, or what!" Hilary admitted, gaily. "But I just feel as if anything thrilling might happen, down in Mount Holly, and I be in it! I believe I've been too serious all my life. I think I'm going to be a giddy, flirtatious old lady! I can't wait to get back to work! I don't belong here."

"Hilary," Dora asked her, seriously, "don't you think rich people can have fun?"

"Yes, I do!" Hilary defended herself, as Craig shouted with laughter. "But as a rule, I don't think they do!"

"But why not?" Dora persisted. "They can have everything," she added, discontentedly.

"Yes, I know they can. But—well, I don't know how it is," Hilary said, thoughtfully, "but there doesn't seem to be any particular heart in it. I'm just speaking for myself, of course. I may be crazy——"

"You are," Craig assured her, smiling. "I don't get you at all. Now suppose that my father leaves me a million dollars, and doesn't leave my brother, or my cousin, say, a cent. Does that mean that my cousin is a better man than I am? Money is the greatest power on earth, Hilary; you can't do anything without it, and people don't respect you if you haven't got it!"

A moving drama of the great west, full of laughs and thrills, is "The Stampede," now showing nightly at the tent theatre of Murphy's Comedians, corner of Central avenue and Stocker street, Casa Verdugo. The curtain rises each night at 8 o'clock.

"The Stampede" is bound to prove one of the most popular of the long line of successful plays presented by these players, and Horace Murphy, stage manager, deserves no little credit for the splendid cast he has assembled for the production.

J. A. Menard, manager of Murphy's Comedians, is to be congratulated for offering the public of Glendale and surrounding points such a strong, rousing drama. It recalls the days of the open west, when cowboys rode wild and round-ups were something more than the tame affairs of today.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE BALLOON FISH

It was a cold, wet, foggy day down at the seashore beach, where Uncle Wiggily was spending a few weeks in a driftwood bungalow. The old rabbit gentleman put on his oilskin slicker, or rubber coat that made him look like a yellow chrysanthemum flower, and started for the door.

"You aren't going out in all this fog and dampness; are you?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, apprehensive like and fussy.

"Why not?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "I can have an adventure in the fog as well as in the sunshine—perhaps a new kind of adventure. Why shouldn't I go out?"

"It will make your rheumatism worse, in all this fog," spoke the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"Well, I'll take a chance on that," laughed Uncle Wiggily, sort of sporty like, if you know what I mean. "I must have an adventure."

So forth he hopped into the cold and dampness and fog, while Nurse Jane sat behind in the driftwood bungalow and worried. But then as she was always worrying, more or less, a little bit additional fussing didn't so much matter.

Uncle Wiggily hopped along the beach. The wet fog, in white clouds, rolled in from the sea. The rabbit gentleman could hardly see his pink, twinkling nose, close as it was to him, and he hardly knew where he was going.

"But I just know I shall have a jolly adventure!" he said.

At first the bunny uncle hopped swiftly, then he went more slowly and finally he hopped very slowly indeed, just like an automobile when it is going to stop. Uncle Wiggily put his paw on his left hip. Then he put his paw on his right hip. Then he grunted and groaned and cried out:

"Ouch! My rheumatism! Nurse Jane was right! The fog has made my rheumatism hurt so much I can't hop. Here I am stuck alone on the foggy beach! How am I going to get home when I can't hop?"

Uncle Wiggily sat down on a pile of seaweed and looked about him. He could see no one to help him, and, all of a sudden, there came crawling and creeping up with his big pinching claws. from the ocean the Lively Lobster

"Ah, ha!" snickered the Lobster as he saw the rabbit. "Now I can catch you and pinch you, for you can't get away from me. Oh, ho!"

Uncle Wiggily tried to hop away from the Lobster's pinch claws but he couldn't. His rheumatism had made him stiff in the fog. And then, all of a sudden, just when the lobster was going to get hold of the rabbit in his pinching claws, something happened.

Up out of the ocean popped a strange fish. At first it was flat, like most fishes, but soon it began to puff itself up and swell out like a rubber ball filled with air. In fact that is what the fish was doing—filling itself with air.

"I will save you from the Lobster, Uncle Wiggily!" said the fish.

"Thank you, but who are you and how can you save me?" asked the rabbit.

"I am a Balloon Fish," was the answer. "I will puff up like a balloon and rise in the air. You can catch hold of my fins and I will lift you far out of the reach of the Lobster's claws. Then, sailing through the air, like a balloon, I will take you home."

And this the Balloon Fish did. He puffed himself bigger and bigger, until he floated in the air above Uncle Wiggily's head. The bunny reached up, took hold of the fins of the Fish, and away they floated safe to the bunny's driftwood bungalow.

"Come back! Come back!" snickered the Lobster. "Come back and let me pinch you!" But the bunny didn't come back, I should say not!

"Thank you for saving me," said Mr. Longears to the Balloon Fish, as it floated back to the sea. And if the charcoal man doesn't jump in the flour barrel to try and make himself pink, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily in a dark hole.

COLIMA AND EGAN MEET AT VERNON

Fight Fans Look Forward to Main Event Tonight as Exciting Battle

Fight fans who are lucky enough to get into Jack Doyle's Vernon arena tonight are assured of a real scrap when Boston Joe Egan and Bert Colima swap mitts in the main event of a well loaded card of fistic entertainment. It will be the second meeting of these two ring favorites, with Colima having the edge by a decision in the first meeting.

Egan has been in the ring with some tough scrappers. He made Young Stribbling extend himself to win, whipped Jimmy Slattery, gave Lou Bogash a lacing, licked George Robinson twice and Pal Reed the same amount. He has met Jimmy Darcy twice recently in the north.

In the semi-windup Antone Rizzo, a newcomer on the coast, will meet Johnny Lamar. Don Davis and Young Datto are billed for the special spot. Tony Fuente goes against Jim Barry in a battle of heavyweights. Other fights on tonight's card are: Jimmy Powell and Toby Montoya, Johnny Sacco and Sailor Masterino, and Rod Edwards and Eddie Burke.

Samis to Join Ducks Next Season, Report

Manager Frank Brazill will sign Bill Samis, semi-pro baseball star, who played with the Glendale White Sox early this season, for the Portland club next season, it was reported here today. On the recommendation of Joe Pirrone, Samis was given a thorough tryout with the Ducks here last week and made a big hit.

He plays the outfield and hits lefthanded, although he boasts a strong righthand throwing. He is a big fellow, both in size and weight, and is the Catalina Cubs' leading batsman.

Report Buzz Arlett Going to Cardinals

According to a report from Oakland, "Buzz" Arlett, hitting phenomenon of the Pacific Coast league with the Oakland club, has been sold to the St. Louis Nationals. WHITE SOX NEED STRONG BATTERY

Important Game Billed for Next Sunday; Sullivan Sick In Hospital

Frank Kerwin boss of the Glendale White Sox, is looking for a strong battery for next Sunday's game, when the pale hose crew is billed to meet the Inglewood aggregation of the Bay District league, in the first of a series of games to decide the inter-league title.

Elmer Reiger, who has been looking after the hurling for the White Sox, has departed for Denver, where he will hurl in the semi-pro tournament being staged there. "Big Boy" Joe Sullivan, who worked behind the rubber for the White Sox, is in the Monrovia hospital with a case of pneumonia. Inglewood has won the last eighteen games played, and is anxious to surpass the record of the White Sox of twenty-five consecutive victories. It has not been decided whether the game will be played in Glendale, Inglewood or neutral territory.

TAGGING THE BASES

The Yankees stayed in the lead by trouncing Cleveland, 8 to 3. Ruth got his fortieth homer.

Walter Johnson held the Browns hitless in a seven-inning contest, Washington winning, 2 to 0. Johnson issued only two passes and was given perfect support.

The Giants split a doubleheader with the Cubs. Chicago won the first game, 3 to 2, and the Giants slugged their way to an 11-to-7 victory in the night cap.

Pittsburgh beat the Phils, 7 to 4, and advanced to within three and a half games of the lead.

Brooklyn knocked Haines out of the box and defeated the Cardinals, 5 to 3, despite Hornsby's twenty-first homer.

The Braves nosed out the Reds in the tenth, 6 to 5, bunching three hits off Carl Mays for the winning run.

Flagstead and Ehmke, former Tigers, were contributing factors as the Red Sox beat Detroit in the eleventh, 4 to 3.

Film Theatres Try to Throttle Tent Shows

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—An attempt on the part of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Southern California to crowd the tent shows, circuses and carnivals out of business is seen in the appeal that was made yesterday by the legal representatives of the Theatre Owners to the finance committee of the Los Angeles City Council to pass an ordinance providing high license fees for these enterprises and for all theatricals or concert entertainments held under or behind canvas.

The tentative ordinance that was submitted by the efficiency director of the city provided a license fee of $175 for the first day and $100 each additional day for small circuses and carnivals, and $75 the first day and $50 each subsequent day for theatricals and concerts.

It was frankly admitted that the purpose of the proposed ordinance is to crowd out tent shows, which are more popular than ever.

Action on the proposed ordinance was postponed for a week doafter Councilman Baker had objected on the ground that the show men should be given a hearing.

PREVIEW OF FALL STYLES IN HATS

Four Living Models Display Season's Creations at Pendroy's Store

Dame Fashion's fall bonnet is a lovely combination of alluring colors and intriguing, chic features, it was revealed this afternoon to Glendale maids and matrons, who attended the preview of millinery shown on the second floor of Pendroy's store on South Brand boulevard at Harvard street. From the top of her head to the tips of her toes milady, whatever her age or type, can outfit herself most modishly for the fall.

Hats and shoes were featured at the Pendroy fashion show this afternoon; however, enhancing their charm were many attractive dresses and accessories also received from New York shops.

Chapeaux of varied shapes and colors emphasized the decrees that the smart hat has a rolling brim, disclosing the face, and that the predominating colors are blues, blacks and wood shades.

Some Hats Large

Which does not mean that there are not exceptions to these rules, and, while most hats are small, there are some that are large; and that, while blues, blacks and wood shades are most in evidence, there is offered a medley of colors in a display of fall hats.

If it be a black hat, it may have a clever bit of ostrich feather to create the right jauntiness; or, perhaps, cording of some bright color with metal ribbon conventional floral design; or stitching in gold or silver thread; or hand-painted floral design. The same treatment may be given hats in wood shades or blue.

Disregarding fixed line and shape are the cunning, stylish soft hats, some that have no sign of stiffening, but are so cleverly manipulated on the head of a chic young maid.

Hand-Painted Ribbon

In other styles are hats of cere ribbon with hand-painted trimmings; hats in duvetyne with leather and painted trimmings; hats of hatters' plush, New York tailored; the little hats with stovepipe crowns and small rolling brim; saucy little hats with ribbon effects or feathers sticking severely up in front and giving height to the wearer; hats in metallic cloth and laces; larger hats with aeroplane bows; and ribbon hats.

Above all, the fall hat favors milady, for, has she one or many, she will find that fashion has created them so that they are artistic and practical for any occasion, and, with their happy combination of colors and materials, they can be worn with many gowns. Bobbed hair or otherwise, due consideration has been given all desires, for varied head sizes are also special features of the offering of fall hats at Pendroy's.

Living Models

The many attractive styles were shown by four charming models, Miss Bird, Mrs. Thompson, Miss Allspaugh and Miss Madden.

Many compliments were given Mrs. E. C. Pendroy and to Mrs. Lulu Wiltsie of the millinery department, and F. K. McNeil, manager of the second floor, for the pleasure and success of the affair.

Special mention should be made of the shoes displayed by the models. All shoes were Parisian models, emphasizing the stylish short vamps. Among the shoes shown were patent oxfords with scroll cut-out effects; black suede, patent and satin trimmed, with Cuban heels; new brown calf with military heels and high ankle straps for wear with suits.

Special music was given during the revue, and Mrs. Bernice Center of the store staff, well-known radio singer, gave two delightful solos.

That's All

May Best Men Win
Care In Selecting Judges
Reward Sometimes Lacking
Build Before November

By Gil A. Cowan

It is election day. The good citizen who values his right of franchise has voted. If you have not as yet gone to the polls, there may still be time as you read this. If so, stop reading, go vote, and forget the rest of this column.

For those of you who have voted, may it be hoped that the good judgment of the people of Glendale vicinity be demonstrated by the results, which will be published tomorrow. It is no careless task, selecting supervisors, public prosecutors, judges, assemblymen and other representatives of law and order.

As one reviews the campaign of the last few weeks it is a wonder that many men have the heart to be candidates for public office in view of the attacks, the expense and the many little things which are disheartening.

Yet through it all one sees gleaming the American attitude, "may the best man win," and suffice it to say that the public is fairly well satisfied with the choice of the minority who are registered and who take the trouble to vote.

Some day voting is going to be compulsory, but that day should be postponed until we have a better method of educating the electorate. For a fact, less than 10 per cent of those who cast their ballots actually know the judicial candidates.

It is a sad state of affairs that those seeking office cannot be analyzed sufficiently, but the barristers are opposed to publicity, and the candidates curry favor to such an extent through affiliation that their records are fairly well buried.

Competent judges are needed more today than ever before. Theirs is not a post for the superannuated lawyer. The bench is the place for active, alert, learned men. May all the winners of the day be that, and no less.

It is strange how professional politicians insist on holding office, how novices seek to attain high honors without experience, and how voters are prone to overlook these factors in making their decisions. It makes one feel that reward is sometimes lacking.

Nevertheless, Los Angeles is happily devoid of the gangster type of politician that pervades San Francisco, Chicago and New York. It is possible to elect a man's man in this country without his soul being sold in advance.

And for those who endeavor to buy their way there seems to be an evil eye which reveals them in their true light before the campaign is closed. Such is the game of politics in the far west.

Notice is hereby served on prospective builders that lumber prices are going up shortly. Better start that house today. Better get under way with your fall building program while labor and material can be had at a satisfactory price.

For those who wait until after the presidential election, marking the time when Southern California will take another spurt forward, there is going to be added expense.

Build, and build now.

Harold Brewster Back From Tour of State

Rip Van Winkle has returned home! That is Harold L. Brewster, instructor in dramatics and public speech in the Glendale Union High school, has just completed a tour of Southern California cities, appearing as Rip Van Winkle on publicity programs and being greeted by mayors and city officials.

Included in his itinerary were Riverside, where he was heartily welcomed at the Mission Inn, library and city hall; Santa Ana, Anaheim and Fullerton.

Mr. Brewster is to interpret the character of Rip on Labor day in the presentation of the play "Rip Van Winkle" at the Idylwilde mountain resort, east of Riverside. Garnet Holme will direct the production. The cast will be practically the same as appeared last month in the presentation in the Giant Forest.

Local Dahlia Grower Sends Bloom to News

Visitors at The Glendale Evening News office are admiring two beautiful "George Walter" dahlias, each eight inches in diameter and twenty-six inches in circumference. They are the product of the garden of J. W. Pearson of 700 North Louise street. Mr. Pearson states that he heard a report from Eagle Rock that dahlias this year were not as fine as previously and he brought in these fine blooms to show what is being grown in Glendale.

E. H. Strang Held for Having Illicit Liquor

E. H. Strang of Los Angeles was arrested at 6:30 o'clock last night, at the corner of Los Feliz and San Fernando Roads, on suspicion of drunkenness, and was taken to police headquarters, where Dr. G. Kaemmerling, city health officer, pronounced him under the influence of intoxicating liquor. A bottle of whisky was found on his person. The car he was driving was taken to a local garage and his bail was placed at $300. He spent the night in jail.

PAVING TO LINK SUBURBAN CITIES

York Boulevard Improvement To Bring Eagle Rock Nearer Hollywood

EAGLE ROCK, Aug. 26.—This community is to be brought appreciably nearer Hollywood by the paving of York boulevard west of Glassell avenue.

The part to be paved extends from Glassell avenue, west to Verdugo road, along an elevated scenic route. York boulevard from Verdugo road, west to the Glendale city limits, is already under construction, and, while the name changes at the Glendale line to Adams street, the Glendale end is already open and paved.

From Adams street the connection changes to Palmer avenue as far as Glendale boulevard, where the highway turns west along the latter street to Los Feliz road and follows that road to the heart of Hollywood.

The Hollywood connection brings to light the fact that York boulevard is the virtual extension of Vermont avenue, the main highway to the harbor, dividing Los Angeles like a stem, one branch going west at Los Feliz road to Cahuenga pass, Ventura boulevard and upstate points, and the other via York boulevard eastward to San Bernardino.

Want Playground

Club women and civic workers of Eagle Rock prefer that the natural springs, green shade trees and grounds now utilized as an auto camp at the corner of Alverne and Chickasaw avenue be converted into a public playground.

Petitions setting forth such a request are before the Los Angeles City Council, where a petition signed by Roland A. Toll, resident in the vicinity of the auto camp, protesting the granting of a new license to the auto camp owner, Eugene Del Fosse, is also being considered.

Rev. W. C. Templeton of Winfield, Kan., has made many new friends during his work here in the past few weeks for the Presbyterian church. He took the pulpit at the request of the church members when Rev. William Middlemass left to visit his former home in Scotland. The congregation of the church has felt distinctly honored in having Rev. Templeton direct the worship. He is one of the best-known men in Kansas, a prominent Rotarian as well as a minister. Rev. Templeton will preach here until Rev. Middlemass returns about September 1.

Royalties Investment Co. Is Aiding Development of Local Prosperity
